WORD IS RECEIVED FROM LT. JOHN L. HAYES

Lt. John L. Hayes has been rescued at sea after his airplane had crashed.

As reported in last week's edition Mrs. Lorraine Hayes had been advised by the government that her husband Flight engineer on a B29 had been missing in action since Feb. 27.

On Saturday March 17 Mrs. Hayes received a telegram telling her that if she would listen in at the Army Hour program over WMAQ Sunday that she would hear the voice of a relative broadcasting from the Pacific. Doing as requested, she heard her husband's voice over the radio, telling how he and other members of his crew were rescued by a naval destroyer after 3 days on life rafts in the Pacific.

According to the broadcast, the plane developed engine trouble enroute to its base on Saipan. When the plane crashed it broke in 3 parts.

Two rafts were salvaged and 8 men of the crew managed to get aboard. For 36 hours the men were without food or drink but they didn't mind it as much as the cold. It was hard for them to keep warm. Two sharks were trailing their raft during this time.

On the 28th, a navy plane spotted them and dropped a small package of rations, a large raft and some radio equipment.

On the 29th a liberator bomber and a B29 located them and while the first went for help the B29 stayed with them for protection. Shortly a destroyer picked them up and it was then 4 nights and 8 days before the boys were transferred to a hospital ship. The men were unable to tell the name of the hospital ship that they were on or the location.

Lt. Hayes has been in the service 3 years in July. He received his commission in April, 1943. Lt. and Mrs. Hayes (the former Lorraine Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morris of Homer) have a two year old daughter Judy Lynn.

Mrs. Morris and daughter have many friends in this vicinity who are rejoicing with her over her good news.

The Lions Club of Frankfort heard a very informative talk at their monthly dinner and meeting in the parlors of the Frankfort Methodist church Tuesday evening by Dr. Sharp of the Will County Health Board in which the speaker set forth details on how the Board came to be formed as an emergency measure in Joliet. He pointed out that within six months after the close of the war, the Health Board would cease to function under the present setup and that in order to maintain the Board it would be necessary for the people of Will County to petition the Will County Board to place the matter on a ballot at a general election and vote for the continuation of the Health Board. L. E. Janes Buys Former Mineral Springs Farm

L. E. Janes of Alpine, an official of Sears, Roebuck and Co., has purchased the former Mokena Mineral Springs Farm from Mrs. Jessie Sippel. This farm is a Mokena landmark and at one time was widely publicized when mineral water was discovered there. For quite a number of years this water was bottled and shipped from the springs to Chicago but finally this business died out and the farm was used for truck farming. It is understood Mr. Janes is going to make many improvements on it.

Mr. Janes has purchased a number of Mokena properties and now owns what formerly was the old Drug store corner property, the old Blazer place, the Chas. Moore place and the old Walter Fisher lot, all on Front street. The Fisher lot which had been overgrown with a young forest has been cleared, and it is understood a store building is being planned for the future. The old Drug store corner is also being remodeled.

Mokena has needed a progressive man like Mr. Janes for many years to help build up and improve the community.

OVER 600 ATTEND TINLEY PARK AMATEUR SHOW

An audience estimated at over 600 persons greeted the Amateur Show sponsored by the Tinley Park Recreation Commission at the Tinley Park school gym last Friday evening. There were 22 numbers on the program ranging from tap dancing to singing, acrobatic stunts and musical numbers.

The show opened with the first number being an 8 year old performer doing a tap dance. Frank Wilson, 70 years old of Oak Lawn was as spry as any youngster with his rendition of a tap dance.

The program was climaxed with the magic performance conducted by Harry Trevarthen of Tinley Park which conclusively proved the old adage that the hand is quicker than the eye is true.

The many stunts of magic were very interesting and greatly enjoyed. The proceeds realized from the show are to be used by the Recreation Commission for a playground project in Tinley Park. The sponsors of this show greatly appreciate the splendid support accorded the enterprise by the people of this and surrounding communities.

Mrs. Sarah Volk, aged 93 years, the oldest resident of Alpine, died at the home of her son George last Saturday.

She was born Sept. 12th, 1851 in Orland township, the daughter of George and Eva Lauffer. Her birth place was near the Cook and Will County line about 4 miles northeast of Mokena in a one room house. The material for this house had been brought from Chicago on one wagon load.

Soon after her birth a larger house was built across the road.

In May 1882 she was christened by a traveling minister in a school house located three fourths of a mile southeast of Mokena. She was confirmed on April 9th, 1885 by Rev. Wm. Meyer in the newly formed St. John's Evangelical church in Mokena. She was the youngest member of the first confirmation class of this church.

She is survived by a son George C. Volk of Orland township and a daughter Mrs. Josephine Sayers of New Lenox; seven grandchildren and eight great grand children, also by one brother Daniel Lauffer of Joliet and one sister Mrs. Caroline Marti of Mokena.

Tinley Folks Have Very Close Call

Mr. and Mrs. John Negosinski of 179th Street in Tinley Park had a narrow escape from death when their automobile stalled on the Harlem Ave. crossing of the Rock Island west of Tinley Park Monday night.

Mr. Negosinski was driving north toward the Art Dini farm on the north side of the tracks. The road leading to the crossing runs up a steep incline. The crossing is on a slant and when the car ran off the planks it became stalled. At the same time the west bound 7:09 p.m. Rock Island Joliet suburban train which had just left Tinley Park a few moments before came in sight. Mr. and Mrs. Negosinski had gotten out of their car, but did not have time to get it off the track. They got off the crossing and saw the train hit their car completely demolishing it.

In a car directly back of the Negosinski's were Wm. Mancke Jr., and Angelo Dini of Tinley Park and they too witnessed the accident.

The crossing in question while not built in a straight line but on a slant, has caused other drivers to get off the planks and become stalled, but they always managed to get clear before any train came along.

Mr. Negosinski was formerly employed at the Elwood Ordnance plant.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Amos Croy and his wife settled on a farm in Missouri where Homer was born. Homer was the first Croy to finish high school and college. In New York he worked on a woman's magazine, wrote a novel, freelanced, married and had a son and daughter. After the death of his father and mother, Homer and his family went to France, where Homer Jr. died suddenly. A relative got into serious trouble and Homer mortgaged the farm; he already had a mortgage on his home. He wrote a dealer training film for an oil company and paid the mortgages. His play, "Family Honeymoon," headed for success, turned sour when censored by Variety.

CHAPTER XXIII

Now that I am getting along in my story, I am appalled by the number of events I've left out and I see how futile it is to try to tell an honest story of one's own life. It can't be done. For instance, there is the matter of how many things to put in it. If I tried to put in all, William Harlowe Briggs, of Harper & Brothers, would call me to that sixth floor room with its long table and holy atmosphere, and, in no time at all, would have me down on my knees, sobbing.

There is the matter of selection. But how can one tell what is significant? For instance, I published for a year a magazine for writers called The Magazine Maker. I sold it at a profit, but have wished many times I hadn't let it go. How I would love to have it now when the so-called magazines for writers are so nearly trash. Another story I would like to tell is of my experiences in the first World War. I was with the YMCA, assigned as liaison man with the Signal Corps. And how, for a time, I wrote the radio version of "Show Boat," with Lanny Ross as the star. And I would like to tell of my days with Chic Sale and how he wrote "The Specialist," and of how Earl Derr Biggers created the character of Charlie Chan, the Chinese detective. Doggone it, I will stop and tell that Earl had visited Honolulu, but the idea for Charlie had not come to him. One day, long after his return to New York, he went to the newspaper reading room of the New York Public Library, and happened to see a copy of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin. As he was reading it, he saw mention of a Chinese detective connected with the police department. Then and there Charlie Chan was born. Later, when Earl returned to Honolulu, he found that a local Chinese on the police force was receiving great acclaim for being the Chinese detective Earl had based his stories on. The two were photographed together. But Earl didn't tell him that the original Charlie Chan was a newspaper clipping.

Oh yes! I do want to put in that I was elected secretary of the Authors' League of America to serve with Elmer H. Davis who was president; yes, the Elmer who went to Washington. But, such are the vagaries of one's mind, it was not until several days after my election that I recalled the first reception where I seized my hat and escaped out a side way.

During these years I have come to some conclusions about the art of writing. The chiefest is that it cannot be taught, and that anyone who takes a dollar from you on the promise of making a better writer of you deserves tar and feathers at dawn. And that if you have to encourage anyone to be a writer, you had far better tell him the field is not for him. A real writer is born, and the world does not hold so much discouragement that it can get him down.

And it seems to me the best qualities to be found in writing are sincerity and truth. And, quickly, I want to add a third—simplicity. All my life I have been striving for simplicity, but I have far from attained it. Sometimes, when I have had the courage to turn back through some of my writings, I could hardly find what I had been driving at. For the most part I do not read my "stuff" over after it's printed. It would be just too discouraging. I write it as best I can, and as I feel it when it is flowing, and, like a cow when she has weaned her calf, let the thing shift for itself.

Well, here are some of the beliefs I now have in my personal credo, although—goodness knows—I may have them out of the window inside of a year. The fatalities among cherished beliefs are astonishing!

I believe that most people do the best they can, considering their limitations and their prejudices and the toll their mental limitations have levied upon them.

I believe that kindness is just about the finest thing in the world. And, it seems to me, that kindness has its roots in understanding.

I believe that most people would rather be kind than cruel, but that their animal inheritance is just below the surface and is the cause of much of the intolerable ferocity that human beings so often exhibit toward each other.

I believe there is no secret of happiness and that complete happiness is an impossible goal. But that one can get a great deal of satisfaction as one goes along by not expecting too much and by squeezing dry all the little pleasures.

I believe in the innate dignity of human beings and I hold this to be one of their finest qualities.

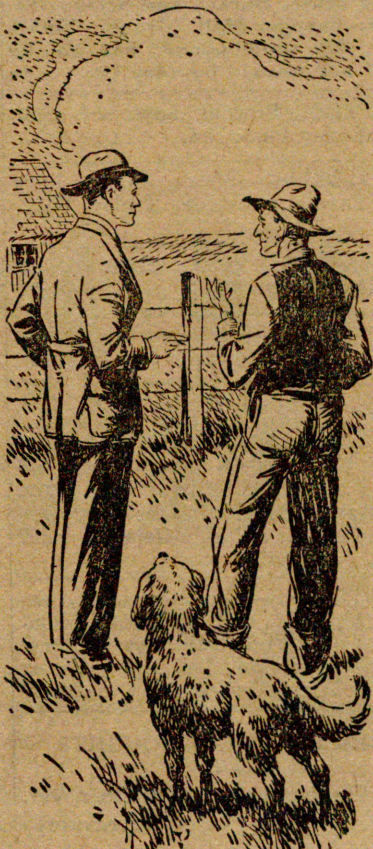

I believe no one is free from worry, and that the person who is happiest and who accomplishes most is the one who spends his time and vitality doing instead of chafing.

I believe that most people hunger for approval as the roots of a flower do for water.

I believe that praise is just about the most powerful stimulus in all the world. And, unfortunately, about the least employed.

I believe that every person is part devil and part pretty fine. And that we must accept these phases as they come.

In all the world is there a pleasure so completely satisfying as going back to the very land you were born on, and walking across it and just looking at it? But I must tell you it's not all pleasure, for every joy has a few stickers, on the theory of the rose, no doubt. You labor over a cornerpost and when you have it finished you're proud of it; there it stands, straight and tall and firm. Then you come back, in no time at all, and it looks like the start of a scarecrow. Or a watertap you've taken pride in has been swept away and there's only a bundle of loose wires and somebody's hencoop.

Spide and I walk over the farm.

I seem always to be going home alone, for alas! the old farm doesn't mean much to the other members of my family. My wife has seen it only once. Carol has never seen it. Some day it will be hers, I suppose. I wonder what will happen.

This is a sample of my homecoming. I get off the train and there is Spide standing on the platform where my father used to wait. He heaves my suitcases into his Chrysler—no buggy now—and we start uptown to the Square. I glance up at the gilt hands on the clock and my mind shoots back to the days when I used to drive by in the hack and stare up at them as if they were the Hanging Gardens of Babylon. The clock suddenly bangs out the hour, and there is a throbbing in my throat. Why is it that an old clock can make a baby of you?

Cars are parked around the Square. But what I think of is the battle that once raged there. Yes, the battle of the hitch racks. . . . When Pa had said, if they tore down the hitch racks, he'd trade in Wilcox. The farmers had won then, but there had been other and later battles and the merchants had finally triumphed. After a time, Pa was back trading again as if no blood had ever been shed. It just about shakes your faith in war.

We pass the north side of the Square where Moses Nusbaum's store was. Today there is no Jewish family in town. But at the State Teachers' College (which has come since those early days) are three Jewish refugee students.

My eye darts to the courthouse steps and I think of the heartbreaks they've seen—the days during the depression when farms were sold by the sheriff, and men and wives and children saw them go to the insurance companies. That shakes your faith, too.

We pass the Methodist church where I hid in the areaway. But the years have helped me in at least one particular. I am no longer afraid of my fellow man. I like him.

We pass the Blue Moon cafe. In it are farmers, eating, and I think of the time we used to eat our cheese and crackers in the back of a grocery store. Yes, times change. Also I think of the time in New York when I stole the girl's tip. But these farmers, when they're finished, will plunk down a tip and think nothing of it. Yes, times change.

I pass the house where my father lay like a shadow in the pillows and asked me to pare his fingernails. I think of the featherbed . . . Spide says, "You didn't catch cold on the train, did you?"

And I say, "I don't think so. I guess I got some of that train smoke."

"That Diesel smoke's bad," Spide says.

Here, alone, Phebe lived until eight-four was upon her. One day she went out to hang her featherbed on the clothesline for an airing; the bench she was standing on tipped and threw her on the ground. Bones were broken, and in St. Francis Hospital she lay waiting for them to mend. But before they could do so, pneumonia came and my second mother was no more.

The water tower jumps up ahead of me, and my mind goes back to the time that Dave and I clumped by it twice a day; and to the time I sold its story to Jesse L. Lasky. Oh boy! I was a businessman that day.

We pass the white schoolhouse and I think of my greatest triumph. When I won the prize in spelling—Pillgrim's Progress—certainly the dreariest book ever written. I think of what happened next year when a new teacher came among us and offered a prize for the one who turned in the best showing for nine months of spelling. I won the prize that year, too. The same damned book. It just about soured me on trying to do my best.

Studying was hard work in those days. We moved our lips and whispered the words of the book to ourselves in such an intense effort of concentration that when we were going full tilt, the schoolroom sounded like a hive of bees. One day a girl, much older than I, who was going to the seminary in town, came out to our house to stay over Saturday and Sunday. She brought her books along so she could study and be ready for her schoolwork Monday morning. After a while she sat down in a chair by the window and got her book ready. To my astonishment, I saw she wasn't moving her lips. She was just sitting there holding the book and looking at it. Now and then she turned a page. I stared and stared at the mysterious ways of higher education.

Our car goes down a swale and I see the exact spot—at least I think it is the exact spot—where I had the only first fight of my life. Where I actually struck a person. I wonder if Harlen Kennedy remembers it.

I look down the draw and think of the white weasel that I trapped just about there—the one the One Horse Farmer told the world about.

The car pulls into the driveway and the door to the house opens and Nellie Logan (Spide's wife) comes out, and their son Lloyd Logan and his wife Opal, and their children, Robert and Kenneth (Spide and Nellie's grandchildren). They are the ones who run the Croy farm. I am home. My feet are on the very soil.

After chatting a while, Spide and I walk out over the farm, just as Pa and I used to do. There's the very place Jim Vert used to come with his dehorning chute and his long thin-bladed, hump-backed saw. I can—so potent is memory—again almost see the blood spurting out on Jim's hands.

There is no longer anybody like Mr. Shannon, the neighborhood man-of-all-jobs. The farms have grown larger; no one would dream, now, of trying to make a living off forty acres. When we need a man to work by the day, we go to town and pick him up there. Usually he's a pretty poor worker. We miss Mr. Shannon.

And there's where the tree stood with the turtle dove nest in its arms. The turtle dove I killed with a stone—and saw the dirt on its dead eyes and, later, saw the starving young ones fall out and be no more. When my friends tell gory hunting stories, I have my own ideas running in my head.

And here's the spot where the drummer for the nursery company offered Pa five dollars a day just to drive him around and introduce him to his neighbors. And the spot where Pa refused. It was the first time I ever realized Pa was doomed always to be poor.

"As I walk I realize more and more that the farm and I are inseparable; that whatever is deep in me came from its roots.

There is a similar pattern between us. The farm has been up and it has been down; and God knows I have!

The black Aberdeen-Angus are doing fine, and so are the Hampshires. I turn to Spide. "I see you have some Shropshires."

"Lloyd thought he'd try out some."

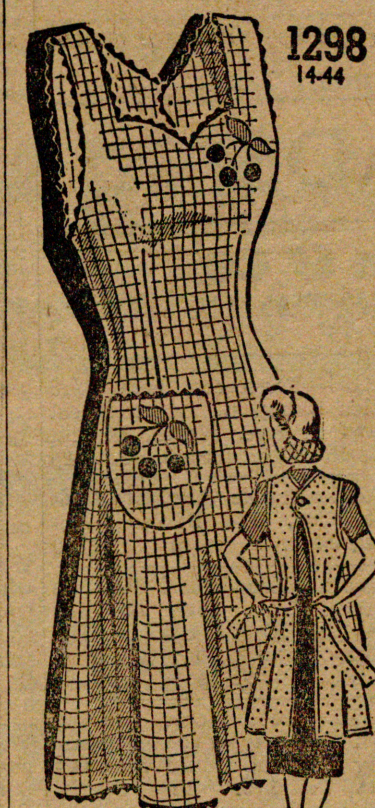

"Well," I say with the manner of an expert delivering the findings of a lifetime, "don't be too sold on them. They're tricky."

Going home is a time of adventures. And no two times are the adventures ever the same, as no two days in our lives are ever the same. Once I arrived the day before a very exciting time; at least, it's exciting to us. The Women's National Corn Husking Contest which originated in our county and which, until the war, was held every year. The National Corn Husking Contest was originated by Henry A. Wallace when he was Secretary of Agriculture, but we started the Women's! It was a gay occasion, with cars from everywhere and newsreel cameras dashing here and there for "shots." At least it was considered a gay occasion by the grinning visitors who piled out of the cars and watched the farm women buckle on their pegs.

The PROGRESSIVE NON-PARTISAN TICKET reflects the endeavors of both the Republican and Democratic parties of Bremen Township, to present qualified candidates for public office. In the spirit of American unity, party differences have been compromised. The Democratic and Republican candidates submitted under separate caucuses have been withdrawn and single slate submitted for your approval.

Political strife has no place at a time when our fighting energies are demanded in the prosecution of a war. Your Republican and Democratic parties understand this and have sought to minimize the time and effort necessary to preserve good government by presenting a slate of candidates that is both qualified and representative.

Do not be misled by hearsay...let your American common sense and civic stability guide your political thinking. Exercise your right of franchise and on APRIL 3rd, 1945, elect the candidates of the PROGRESSIVE NON-PARTISAN TICKET to office.

HOUSEWIVES MUST GET CANNING SUGAR ALLOTMENT FROM RATION BOARDS

The Office of Price Administration says there will be enough sugar to preserve as much fruit as was actually "put up" in our homes last year. The same amount of sugar (700,000 tons) has been set aside this year for home canning as was set aside last year. Last year, however, 300,000 tons more sugar than the total amount allocated for home canning was bought by housewives. A large part of this sugar was bought with stamp 40, the home canning stamp and much of it was used for ordinary household purposes. This year's sugar supply is smaller than it was in 1944. If any over issuance of canning sugar were allowed, it would have to come out of amount allowed for other home use. In 1945 no stamps will be validated for canning sugar. Housewives will be given sugar coupons for home canning by their local boards. Each housewife's home canning sugar allotments will be based on the amount of canning she did last year and the amount she plans to do this year. She will be allowed up to a maximum of 20 lbs. per person or 160 lbs. to a single family, even though the family may contain more than eight persons.

Dear Mildred:

The birthday card and money order from the Mokena Women's Service club, through you, has reached me. Thank you very much.

Your note on the rear of the card was a welcome note, and the money order will be no small aid in my individual efforts to combat the high cost of living, its terrific, but fun-theatres, cafes, cinemas, the opera, and so on indefinitely. Its a lovely city, we're quartered quite satisfactorily and, in short, we're living.

Sincerely,
Elsworth

Dear Ladies:

I'd like to thank you for the birthday card you sent, I received it quite a while ago it was somewhere around my birthday, and believe me it was awfully swell of you, the money was with it, and it was very much appreciated.

I met Roy Homering about a month ago, it was on a bus going to Honolulu and what a surprise I got. I certainly never expected to meet him, its been about 5 years since I last saw him. We spent the day to gether and had a swell time. I took some pictures too which I sent to my Mom.

I'm sorry I have to write such a short letter but there really isn't much to write about here. Hello to all.

As ever,

Hans

We had from six to eight inches of snow this winter and the weather was not so cold. The snow has all left and it is warmer. We have rain on and off.

I will close this letter to you and again I will say Thanks a Million. I am fine and hope this finds you all well.

Yours sincerely,

Freddy and Bud Bennett of Ivanhoe were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Clascina Bonezek.

A new form of amusement was discovered Sunday when Betty Jane Morris, Claudine Owens and Elaine Doss visited at the home of Paul Gardner and talked with Loretta and Tucker. Loretta is about 27 years old and quite spry and talkative for her old age, while Tucker is just a young fellow of 12 but able to carry on quite a conversation. Well you almost guessed it, but Loretta and Tucker are both parrots and their vocabulary is something worth listening to.

Mrs. Burton Reiter enjoyed a Stanley demonstration at the Howard Cooper home last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Weldon Doss and son Jörn spent Monday in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Colangelo and family enjoyed a movie in Lockport Sunday evening.

Strong winds last Friday blew down a large tree near the home of Pvt. and Mrs. John Fox, the tree narrowly missing blocking the Fox driveway.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Saloney of Oak Forest paid a short visit Sunday at the Robt. Roth home.

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Jungles of Willow Springs were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Putz.

Mrs. Florence Reiter, who was involved in a slight auto accident a week ago Saturday while on her way to visit her husband Ralph who was confined at the Little Company of Mary hospital and who suffered no injuries at the time has since Monday confined to the same hospital for observation of pains which developed later. The Burton Reiters brought her home last Friday evening. The x-rays were negative as to a serious damage and it is hoped that Florence will soon be up and around again.

Sunday John and Henry Del Prince, Mr. Paul Gardner and Mr. Louis Naples were to get together to haul cinders for road improvements up in the wooded area. However, when Mr. Naples failed to show up with his truck, Mr. Gardner managed to haul a few loads with his trailer. Incidentally, road conditions in this neighborhood are deplorable and when it is realized that 3 or 4 improved exits would accomodate practically all of the residents here, one wonders why they are not in.

A Prairie fire which got out of control last Tuesday night caused approximately $300 damage at a home in the west end of the Wooded area. Roofing paper and lumber were among the items destroyed. During this season of high winds and dry grass too much caution cannot be exercised with the use of fire. Residents should leave no rubbish fire unattended and if possible screen the fire in to prevent the scattering of sparks. Care should be exercised in disposing of cigarettes and matches.

Mr. Chas. Doctor and his grandson S/Sgt. Gordon Doctor who is home on a furlough enjoyed Sunday at the home of Mr. Oliver Doctor in Rensselaer, Ind.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Adding another War Bond to your collection, eh, Judge?"

"Yes, Josh, I've always looked upon buying Bonds as one of the best ways older folks like me here at home can help our fighting men overseas. For the past couple of years I've put every extra cent I had into them...not only during the War Bond drives...but on a regular basis. Of course, when there's a drive on I always try to buy an extra one or two."

"We've done the same in our family, too, Judge. We figure the more we buy...the better we equip our men...the quicker they'll finish their big job and come marching home again."

"That's the spirit, Josh. And let's be sure of one more thing. Let's be sure that they come back to the same kind of place they left. While they are away and can't express their opinions, let's not make any decisions on things that are going to concern them in years to come."

Dear Service Club members:

Will start this letter by apologizing for not writing sooner and thanking you for the candy. I received my Christmas box just a few days before Christmas. The boys and I sure enjoyed it. In about five minutes after I opened it, it was gone. A few days after Christmas I received the birthday box. I just want to say thanks a million. It's rough to be away from home but its nice to know others are thinking about you, besides your loved ones. Also thanks for the Mokena paper which keeps me up on the happenings around New Lenox. Boy when I get out of this army any one will have a hard time getting me to leave New Lenox.

Its been a long time since I was in the states. This is the tenth month overseas and this makes fifteen months serving my country. I hope this war ends over here soon then I might get a chance to get back. Gosh it would be nice to taste ice cream again. Haven't had any since I left England and that was way back in July. That goes for cokes too. The Frenchmen here have lots of vine (wine) Cognac and galvados but that stuff is the same as gasoline. No kidding, you can put some galvados on the ground and strike a match and it will burn like gas. Lots of the guys put it in their lighters. I haven't seen anyone from New Lenox, but have met two guys from Joliet. One of them I went to school with. Sure would like to see someone from home. The last three days have been swell here just like spring. But this afternoon it looks as though it might rain.

Well I guess I'll close now. So long for now. Thanks once again for the candy and the paper.

Yours truly,
Jack Batson16 February, 1945

To Whom it May Concern:

I wish to thank all the members for my Christmas candy. It arrived in very good condition the last of December and was appreciated by my room mates and myself.

We of this coral island had quite a nice Christmas with turkey and all the trimmings.

Lately we have acquired a very good radio with which stateside broadcasts can frequently be picked up. Of course Radio Tokyos' good American music can't always be spurned. An ample supply of cokes and fresh eggs has done much to make everyone feel much better.

Our best amusement is trading calico to Natives for cat-eyes and poke-pokes. The poke-pokes are anything carved out of wood and painted. Such as fish, alligator or just plain bugs.

Thanking you again, I remain
Very Respectfully Yours,

Veterans of War Service are having every possible consideration in the problems with which they can be helped by War Price and Rationing Board No. 31-1, it was stated today by its chairman Richard J. White.

"We are happy to join the board program announced nationally for assisting veterans to return to businesses or employment that are affected by OPA regulations and for veteran participation with other groups in the work of Price Control and Rationing," said White.

"In fact, we have always had this policy at Board 31-1 and are emphasizing it as more return from service."

In especially difficult problems the veteran may be referred by the board and newly-appointed veterans' adviser at the Chicago Metropolitan Area Office of OPA, White said.

White also said that special gasoline rations for the use of discharged War Veterans, as well as displaced civilian workers, is now being allowed by the board if needed to aid them in getting reemployment.

Death Claims Pearl Spurlock, Ozarks Driver, Guide 30 Years

Mrs. Pearl Sparkey Spurlock, 63, famous for nearly 30 years as the Ozarks woman taxi driver, guide and author of "Over the Old Ozark Trails", died March 13th at the home of her sister Mrs. John Hunt, Altamont, Mo. She had been ill for three months.

Mrs. Spurlock, once known as the only woman taxi driver in America, made her reputation as a guide in the "Shepherd of the Hills" country of Harold Bell Wright. She studied the Taneey county landmarks as described in Wright's books and worked out a plan to show them to visiting tourists.

By appointment Mrs. Spurlock drove sightseers to Old Matt's cabin, Sammy's lookout, the haunts of the Printer of Uddell, giving an interesting lecture as she drove along. No hills were too steep nor gullies too deep for Mrs. Spurlock and her hard-riding automobiles.

All this began in the days when highways were unknown in the Ozarks country. Her first cars—she is said to have worn out dozens of them—were the high riding touring models, equipped with high pressure tires. The roads were only cow trails and creek bottoms.

Hundreds have ridden up ole "Dewey Bald" overlooking "Mutton Holler" behind the steaming radiators of Mrs. Spurlocks taxi-wagons old timers at Branson, Mo. say.

Mrs. Spurlock carried on an extensive correspondence with Harold Bell Wright and it was through her efforts that many of the "Shepherd of the Hills" traditions were kept alive. Evelyn W. Rnyon, editor of the White River Leader says. She located prototypes of Wright's characters and saw to it they were in sight when tourists came around.

She has been "Mrs. Spurlock" on two different occasions. G. E. Spurlock, her first husband, died in 1930. In 1941 she married his brother, Lee Spurlock in a much publicized ceremony at Sammy's Lookout, "Lovers' watchtower of the hill country. Her second husband died about 18 months after the marriage. There were no children by either marriage.

Funeral services were held at Branson with the Rev. J. E. Chase, chaplain of the Missouri House of Representatives, and Dr. R. M. Good president of the School of the Ozarks, officiating.

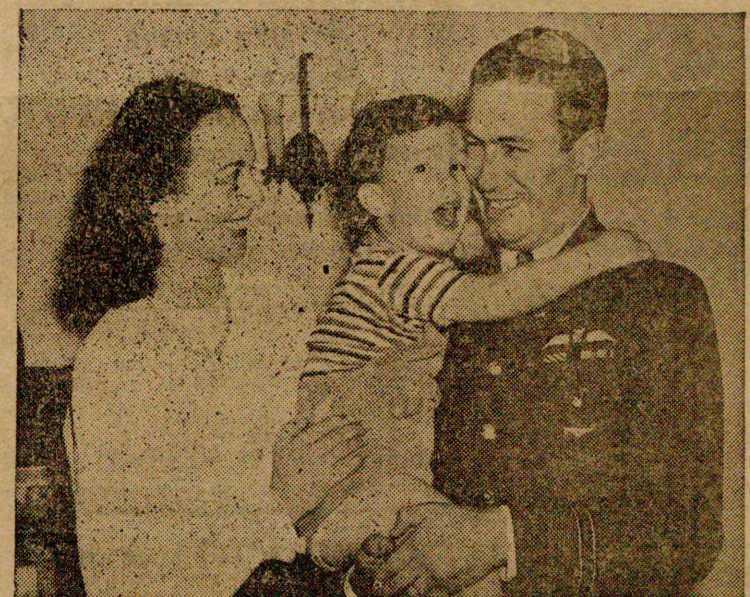

The editor and his family had the pleasure of personally meeting and getting acquainted with the deceased while visiting in Branson, Mo. with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Houchin, cousins of the editor, several years ago.

Return to Philippines

God Said "Bail Out"

When Flight Lieut. Arthur S. Ross, Jr., was downed over German-held territory during the Normandy invasion, and a voice he believes to be that of God told him to bail out, his chances of survival were so infinitesimal that the happy reunion with his wife and child, shown above, must be considered miraculous. In one of the most dramatic documents of the war, Ross describes in the February issue of Cosmopolitan magazine German atrocities which he witnessed, and urges that a stern peace be imposed on a defeated Germany.

POWER SPRAYER BRINGS DEATH TO PESTS

Cattle grubs and heel flies (see inset) cause a $100,000,000 national annual loss in meat, milk and leather production, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. By forcing out grubs and killing them with a Power Sprayer, a product of Food Machinery Corporation, ranchers believe they have found a way toward ultimate control of these destructive pests. The Power Sprayer has nearly a score of other farm uses, ranging from painting the barn to spraying molasses on old hay and dry grass to make it edible for cattle.

NEW LENOX MAN IN FIRST MARINE AIR CRAFT OUTFIT

Lt. James D. Batson of New Lenox is one of the fighting men which compose the first Marine aircraft carrier outfit of this war which teamed up with the Navy fliers.

For a long time, it seemed as tho the Marine Navy carrier team would not get a real crack at the enemy. The planes had made eight strikes against Jap bases on Formosa, Hainan, Luzon and French Indo-China. Only two enemy planes were encountered in the air. Marine Lt. Col. Wm. A. Millington Jr. of Seattle, Wash., commander of the Marine Navy fliers on this carrier, got one of them. The other escaped.

The Japs recently had cause to rue this new partnership when they got their first look at the Corsair-Hellcat team as this outfit is known. Eight planes fell under the hammer blows of the Corsairs' 50-caliber guns and two were downed by the Hellcats in this Marine Navy duo. Other Japs were downed also.

Capt. Robt. W. Kersey of Indianapolis, Ind. and Lt. James D. Batson of New Lenox, Ill. made team work count for a seventh Jap. The two Corsair pilots took turns jamming 50 caliber slugs into the enemy plane until it caught fire and went into the sea.

THIS IS THE ISSUE!

SHALL WE HAVE SELF GOVERNMENT IN OUR OWN COMMUNITY?

The taxpayers are fighting the attempt of the self styled Progressive Non Partisan party do dominate and dictate our local election—an attempt they seek to disguise by talking about being united in the war effort.

The "self chosen" on the Republican and Democratic tickets, who later repudiated these tickets to run as self styled Non Partisans, attempted to inflict what can only be called big time politics upon the people of this township. They would destroy local self government.

Vote the Bremen Taxpayers ticket to insure fair and free elections and local self government. On this ticket appearing on the left are five ex-service men from the last war. They and all the members of this ticket are united with the people of this township in this fight to destroy domination and dictation in our local election. It is our fight—the fight of all good citizens of this township—to destroy that attempt to control and dictate the election—the attempt to compromise it.

We presented facts in the last issue of this paper and showed how these "self chosen" Republicans and Democrats, who now call themselves Non Partisans, tried by caucus, by petition, by objections to anyone else running, to control the election. Were they not afraid of the people of this township?

The so-called Non Partisans printed sample ballots with their own names only upon it—they left the Taxpayers ticket blank. These are not sample ballots—they are a distortion of the ballot—just another misrepresentation and trick upon the people of this township.

The Bremen Taxpayers also printed sample ballots. On this sample ballot they show the names on both tickets—they came straight out, without any attempt at concealing, without distortion. The "self chosen" were afraid to show the names on their sample ballot of the Taxpayers ticket, the names appearing on the ticket to the left. The "self chosen" do not want a fair and free election—they still try to deceive the people of this township.
